

URGES UNIFORM FREIGHT RATES

A flat rate of 12 cents per car mile, plus $16 terminal charges per car, is a just and undiscriminating freight rate, according to Interstate Commerce Commissioner Robert W. Woolley, in a statement submitted today to the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce, in amplification of his assertion that "the rate question is not an academic one," made some time ago to the committee.

Woolley supported his statement with an elaborate table showing how he arrived at the conclusion and urged adoption of McAdoo's plan of Federal control of the roads for five years to work out real railroad legislation. Woolley takes the position that our present freight rate structure is a taxation of small towns and communities without representation and that freight rates add to the very heart of our economic life.

Gives Elaborate Statistics.
In an elaborate tabulation, he reaches his basic rate from the following reasoning:

"Railroad investments total $17,684,736,585. Interest at 6 per cent means $1,061,084,195 annual charges. Operating expenses total $2,277,202,278. Taxes total $151,509,841. This makes a total necessary revenue of $3,490,890,514. Eliminating passenger service revenues of $872,471,578, and terminal expenses, of a similar amount, the road haul revenue service paid for by the public, which pays all freight bills, to make the shipper get a better rate than another, totals $1,744,943,138. Thus the average car-mile cost of the 15,343,000,000 car miles in 1916 was 11.37 cents.

"Terminal service costs for the 55,369,591 carloads averaged $13.75. Labor costs are higher, so the rate should be 12 cents per car mile and $16 per car for terminal charges. Thus the cost of transporting a car of freight 2,720 miles would be $42.40."

Sets Worth Comparisons.
Then his exhaustive tables show comparisons between present rates and rates based upon this schedule. In some cases higher—in some cases lower, but declares it is only a fair rate to the whole public.

"This method," he said, "would prevent the present practices of grouping together, under a common rate, many cities within a radius as much as 500 miles in order to equalize commercial advantages between those various cities. It would prevent lower rates to more distant points, to meet competition, but building up one community at the expense of another, which are practices contrary to our organic law. Uniform rates are made for passenger traffic—why not for freight traffic?"

U. S. ARMY 'JUSTICE' DUALS GERMANY'S

Courts-martial in the American army are outdone in harshness only by those of Prussia, Russia, and Spain, according to General Ansell, acting judge advocate general. To back up the Chamberlain bill to equalize court-martial sentences, Ansell presented this group of "horrible examples."

Soldier went home without leave to see his dying father. Sentenced to death.

Forty years' sentence imposed on soldier who refused to give up cigarettes when an officer found him violating the rule on no smoking while on K. P. duty.

Death sentence given soldier who refused to drill, because too ill.

Fifteen years' imprisonment for man who went home to see ill wife and baby.

Ansell is to continue his testimony today.

AIR TRIP: LONDON TO BUENOS AIRES

LONDON, Feb. 14.—Sir Woodman Burdidge announces that he has booked passage from London to Buenos Aires aboard an airship, which it is proposed shall undertake the trip near August. He says the arrangements are being made by the Vickers people, and the expected voyage will not take more than six days.

Burdidge is going to Buenos Aires on business, and considers the saving of fourteen days on the journey worth the increase in fare, which, he understands, will be between $2,000 and $2,500 for the single journey. He will take his wife with him, and he believes there will be other women passengers.

The total number of passengers will be about fifteen.

As at present arranged, there will be two stopping places, one in Spain and one in Brazil.
